

Kyle Springer is a designer of stuff and things from print to web who believes that great design starts with great communication. He is a photographer of humans and an opinionated blabbermouth on a couple of podcasts by The Whatnauts, which he co-created over five years ago. He's an avid comic book nerd that consistently ruins his sleep schedule playing video games till ungodly hours of the night, and is often seen binge watching Netflix shows from the comfort of his bed. If you're lucky, you may even catch him moon-lighting as an ever-elusive music producer whose 15 minutes of minor internet fame have already expired. More importantly, the quickest way to his heart is by buying him apple juice.

Podcaster
Video producer
Problem solver
Visual communicator
Photographer
Illustrator
Nerd

vcuarts

Bachelor's of Fine Arts in Graphic Design from Virginia Commonwealth University, Fall 2015.

Work Experience

Software Proficiency

Additional Experience

Co-created The Whatnauts, including our website, visual identity, motion graphics, and music.
Produced music for a documentary on the hit anime series, One Piece.
Produced music for an unofficial Toonami Beat Tape that the Creative Director of Adult Swim called a spiritual successor to his own.
Published a comic called Girls are Confusing, in Comicality Vol. 1, 2010 from Virginia Commonwealth University.
Exhibited sculptures in "Emerging Visions: Roots" Greater Reston Arts Center. Mar. 2009.

KYLE

Contact me and let's collaborate.
Email: kbscreative12@gmail.com

SPRINGER